LIVING ON PURPOSE

Off-ramp #1 - Hurry-Sickness Audit

1. Outline where you spent your time during the past week and you money during the past month.
2. Where are you feeling the greatest pressure on your time schedule and your budget?
3. Where are you paying the highest costs from hurry sickness in your health, In your relationships with family and friends, in your involvement with your church, and in your relationship to God? How motivated are you to make some changes?
4. Hurry sickness audit time! Based on where you spend your time and money, what are the aspirations and values that seem to drive your life, and where do they come from? Is your life driven by the expectations of your workplace, your community, the expectations of family, friends or neighbours? Try setting your answer to music or put it in poetic verse. Sing it or read it along with you other answers to your study group or a friend.

Off-ramp #2 - High Status and Extreme Cool Audit

1. If you are over thirty-five, what is high status in your community in terms of the most desirable places to live, the most prestigious jobs, the places to shop, the brands to wear, the vehicles to drive, the places to vacation, prestigious kid activities, and the premiere schools for young?
2. If you are under thirty-five, what is extreme cool among people your age in terms of the most prestigious jobs, the brands to wear, the places to shop, the places to go, the cars to drive, the technology to use and the places to vacation?
3. Now get out your old magazines, scissors and glue, and create a large collage of pictures, ads and words that playfully portray what is extreme cool or high status in your community.
4. High status, extreme cool audit time! To what extent is your sense of what is best derived from Boom City's notion of extreme cool and high status? Share your list, collage and a candid confession of your struggle with a friend or study group. Pray to find God's best for your life.
